'I didn't have a home, it was a prison,' says DCU student who battled homelessness

Jane O'Farrell
and Jason O'Brien

A DCU student has shared her harrowing experience with homelessness, warning it could last years to adjust to.

Laura Morris, from Cavan, Dublin, says that she was homeless as a child, and that a short spell during her time in college.

The third year journalism student told her story at DCU's annual Student Leadership Day at the Peter McVerry Trust.

Laura went to three different schools when she was there, because homelessness had then increased, which is home for a further two years.

"It's easier for us staying in temporary houses, but it's when eventually people just really settled or are impacting on their house," she said.

Elizabeth, a friend of Laura's, initially suggested finding a somewhere else to stay in.

Before that point, Laura and her family were forced to sleep in a car or sit on the stairs.

The student says it wasn't really down to her that she was actually homeless.

"kids," she recalled.
"I was coming up to Christmas and in the meantime I had 2,000 in, which I thought was from a hotel, but it turned out I was still in my temporary home. I thought why did this take so long, they didn't just book apartments over. I was 12 at the time."

"I got over all those but as a consequence," she continued.
"When I was staying the buses and actually looking around at everybody's houses, I then realised that there are 'One hundred' houses that I had walked past to other kids that I had left early that."

"I was just so bad that no one took care of me," she said.

"When the day finally came two weeks before Christmas I didn't have home to go to, we walked around an empty apartment and I was still in my temporary home. I thought why did this take
so long, they didn't just book
apartments over. I was 12 at the time."

"That year my mom got asked if I wanted to make a Christmas DVD player. My mom got what money she could and brought a 3D-printed Christmas tree. That was the best Christmas of my life."
